Description

Superb coffee table model "Soleil" created by Roger Capron (1922-2006), a major figure in post-war French ceramics and a key player in the Vallauris school. This iconic 1970s piece features a glazed ceramic tile top assembled in a powerful, perfectly balanced graphic composition. The central motif, depicting a stylized radiant face, evokes an abstract sun, surrounded by radiating lines and bands of color in tones typical of the period: ochres, browns, bluish grays and deep red. The set rests on a base of glazed ceramic tiles. The ensemble rests on a sober, elegant metal structure, which highlights the richness of the tray without distracting from it. Each tile features unique glaze work, with a light network of craquelures (craquelé) and variations in hue characteristic of Capron's handcrafted
