Description

An elegant oil painting on canvas depicting a luminous view of the Venice lagoon, by Albert Ferdinand Duprat (1882-1974), an artist known for his refined interpretations of the Venetian landscape. The composition opens into a wide expanse of water animated by gondolas and sailing vessels, with glimpses of the city, including the bell tower of St. Mark's in the background and a tree-lined shore to the right. The scene is pervaded by a clear, diffuse light that delicately reflects on the lagoon's surface, creating a serene and airy atmosphere. The painting, characterized by a loose and vibrant brushstroke, highlights an impressionist sensibility, with particular attention to atmospheric effects and reflections. The color palette, featuring blues, greens, and warm golden
