Description

JAPAN - Edo period (1603-1868). Wrought iron and openwork maru-gata tsuba decorated with two intertwined discs inscribed in a circle, kozuka-hitsu hana and kogai-hitsu hana. Unsigned. Wear. Diameter : 8 cm. Notes :

Among the samurai, the sun and moon occupy a profound symbolic place, linked to the worldview and values of the bushido. The sun, often associated with Japan itself, represents strength, honor and clarity of action: it embodies the warrior's courage and righteousness. The moon, more discreet and changeable, symbolizes reflection, introspection and self-control. Together, they reflect the balance sought by samurai between power and serenity, action and wisdom.
