Description

Oil on canvas. Original canvas. Signed. Néstor Rufino de Alarcón stands out on the Sevillian art scene as a master of technique, whose work bears witness to a profound respect for the legacy of the great masters of the Golden Age. He fuses the sacrificial sobriety of the classics with a vibrant impressionist touch. His flower paintings and still lifes offer an ode to light and transparency, where crystal and petals achieve absolute formal perfection, capturing a sophisticated languor that has seduced the likes of Orson Welles. In his still lifes, technical precision manifests itself in an incomparable interplay of water and wine, elevating the floral genre to a mystical dimension. The Spanish pictorial tradition is renewed with a mastery that makes him one of the most universal and protean figures of his time. Image dimensions
