Description

Pair of French Art Deco club chairs, circa 1930, in the taste of Jacques Adnet. Their architectural silhouettes, with wide rounded arms and low backrests, illustrate the clean, modern lines typical of French seating from this period. Fully restored and recently reupholstered in a rich duck-blue velvet, these armchairs offer generous, comfortable seating while highlighting the geometric volume of the design. They rest on small, discreet yet elegant stained-wood clog legs that anchor the ensemble and subtly recall their 1930s origins. Ideal in a living room, study or library, this pair combines everyday comfort with the timeless spirit of the Art Deco decor inspired by Jacques Adnet.
