Description

An elegant French inkwell from the early 19th century, crafted from finely chased and mercury-gilded bronze, resting on a refined wooden base. The central element is embellished with a full-relief sculpture depicting a delicately modeled winged cherub holding a dart, a classic symbol of amorous and artistic inspiration. The composition is enhanced by two lateral inkwells and a square container, perfectly integrated into a harmonious structure decorated with neoclassical ornamental motifs. The warm, luminous gilding highlights the details of the workmanship, lending the object great refinement and prestige. The solid and elegant wooden base completes the ensemble, providing stability and a pleasing chromatic contrast with the gilded bronze. An object of great charm and quality, ideal for collectors or for
