Description

Important Genoese chandelier featuring a finely carved and giltwood central column dating from the 18th century. The shaft is decorated with elegant foliage motifs and fluted elements, characteristic of Ligurian craftsmanship of the period. The structure was later enriched, in the first half of the 20th century, with metal arms and an abundant decoration of cut crystal drops and beads. The cascading crystal elements, including faceted drops and elongated pendants, create a vibrant play of light and movement. A highly decorative piece with strong visual impact, suitable for refined interiors. Condition: Good overall condition. Wear to the gilding consistent with age. Crystals generally well preserved with possible minor losses. Electrical system in working order. Dimensions: Height: 88 cm Width:
