Description

Elegant pair of lounge chairs dating from the 1980s, characterized by an architectural structure in black lacquered wood with thick, balanced lines. The design, both sober and assertive, evokes European productions of the late 20th century, midway between the influence of safari chairs and post-modern aesthetics. The seats and backrests have been upholstered in a black-and-white zebra-patterned fabric, bringing a contemporary graphic dimension while retaining the vintage spirit of the ensemble. Comfortable and stable, these armchairs present a fine decorative presence and fit equally well in a design, contemporary or eclectic interior. Very fine patina to the wood, overall in good condition. Era: circa 1980 Structure: black lacquered wood Trim: zebra
