Description

Nineteenth-century mass toy set SDB24MES001 Tinplate children's mass set incense burner, shuttle, bucket and pin, tray and cruets, ciborium, chalice, monstrance Charming set of nineteenth-century mass toys, a delicate witness to a family tradition that has now disappeared. In the great French houses of the 19th century, it was customary for sons' destinies to be mapped out from an early age: the eldest inherited the castle and the name, the second embraced a military career, while the youngest was often destined for the Church. This set is part of this culture, serving to initiate children into liturgical gestures, in a spirit that is both educational and symbolic. These mass toys, now sought-after, are a touching testimony to religious education in 19th-century bourgeois and
