60 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Crystal

Diameter : 12

Height : 24

Description

Charming engraved blown-crystal decanter from the late 19th/early 20th century, Bohemian production, adorned with a delicate vegetal decoration of stylized foliage and gooseberries, finely chiseled on the body. The shape is elegant with a rounded body and flared trumpet neck, topped by an elongated faceted crystal stopper, not original, but well matched. Height 24cm with stopper and 18cm without, max diameter approx. 12-13cm. Nice overall condition with traces of use, including a few superficial scratches, a slight inner haze and wear at the neck related to rubbing of the stopper, as well as small discreet chips on the stopper. Approx. 600-700gr.
