Description

A caricature of a little man in a night cap announcing the emptying of his chamber pot through the window. This lovely two-patina sculpture of a house facade has a shuttered window and above, leaning forward from an open window, an amusing burlesque character shouting down into the street that he's going to act ... Beautiful and burlesque mural matchholder with two highly expressive and quality patinas in bronze with two gold and dark brown patinas; a quality piece and a mid-nineteenth century curiosity not devoid of humor, in good condition and an unusual quality mural element.
