Description

Lilacs - Still life with flowers - Oil on canvas - 19th century
Large 19th century oil on canvas depicting a bouquet of lilacs arranged in a vase, treated in an interior. The composition is distinguished by a soft, nuanced palette, blending mauve, pinkish and green tones, typical of flower painting in the second half of the XIXe century. The brushstroke is supple and soft, with a soft, delicate touch. The touch is supple and sensitive, with delicate work on light and materials that brings the flowers and the intimate atmosphere of the scene to life. This type of decorative floral still life was particularly appreciated in bourgeois painting and refined interiors of the period. With its large vertical format (130 × 80 cm), this work has a remarkable decorative presence and fits perfectly into a classic or contemporary
