Portrait of a scholar (tronie).Oil on wood panel.Representation of an elderly, bearded man in bust, turned three-quarters, against a dark background. The figure wears a white collar and fur-trimmed coat, enhanced by red drapery. The composition features marked chiaroscuro, characteristic of the Dutch Baroque tradition and Rembrandt's posterity.The work resembles a "tronie", an idealized character study rather than an individual portrait. The free treatment of the garment and background contrasts with the finely executed face. The work is similar to a "tronie", an idealized character study rather than an individual portrait.Slightly curved panel, surface showing old patina and some restorations. Posterior frame.
