Description

A real painting, a bouquet of flowers, roses, a remarkable work signed by the Avshar people originally from the Caucasus. Woven and knotted wool on wool. High-precision work revealing all the skill of Armenian weavers. The palette of plant hues is diversified and creates a relief effect as if each flower were bursting from the surface. The indigo blues are ravishing, there are no less than 4 types of varying density and saturation. The red ochres are marvelous and give all the necessary depth to this painting, to this almost painterly work. Circa 1900 Perfect condition Dim: 70 x 68 cm Maybe to be framed!
