Description

Charles Valton - Attelage de boeufs nivernais, 1887 Salon Bronze with nuanced patina Nivernais ox team. Work by animal sculptor Charles Valton, a pupil of the great master Antoine-Louis Barye. This model, presented at the 1887 Salon, perfectly illustrates the artist's characteristic powerful realism and anatomical mastery. The set rests on a griotte marble base. The naturalistic terrace is particularly interesting: it is embellished with a milestone indicating Nevers at 21k5 and Clamecy at 50k3, clearly situating the scene in the Nivernais region. This detail reinforces the work's geographical anchorage and can be interpreted as a nod to the rural world popularized by Rosa Bonheur, notably in her famous painting Ploughing in the Nivernais. The details are particularly meticulous: taut musculature, natural
