Description

Delicate pair of bust portraits of children, presented in their gilded wood frames, sensitively illustrating two young subjects in an intimate and refined spirit. One depicts a little girl absorbed in a sewing gesture, the other a young boy with a tender, expressive gaze. The gentle treatment of the faces, the luminous complexions and the familiar atmosphere place these works in the taste of the Central European Biedermeier, circa 1820-1840. Harmonious and highly decorative set, offering a fine presence in pairs. Good overall condition, with wear and crazing consistent with age.
