Beautiful decorative sculpture depicting a roaring lion, carved in wood and finished with a warm brown patina.

The animal is shown in a tense and powerful stance, advancing over a base suggesting a rocky outcrop, with a full and animated mane that enhances the expressiveness of the piece.

The treatment, deliberately energetic and highly decorative, highlights the musculature of the beast and its dramatic character.

This animal sculpture, probably made in the 19th century, is appealing for its strong visual presence and ornamental power.

A decorative piece with real character.
