Description

Osvaldo Borsani (1911-1985) Table model T41 with adjustable height - Italy, 1960s Tecno Edition Elegant T41 model table designed by Osvaldo Borsani, emblematic of the technical and formal research carried out by the designer at Tecno. The circular top, finely veneered in wood arranged in radiating quarters, reveals a subtle play of veining that animates the surface with sobriety. Its rigorous design is punctuated at its center by a discreet medallion, the signature of a perfectly mastered balance. The special feature of this model lies in its height adjustment mechanism (up and down), ingeniously integrated into the central shaft. This system makes it possible to adapt the table to different uses - coffee table, dining table or meeting table - illustrating Borsani's desire to place design within a logic of flexibility and domestic modernity.

True to the Tecno spirit, this technical innovation is achieved with fluidity, without altering the purity of the lines. The four-pointed star base, in black lacquered metal, ensures stability and visual lightness, while offering great seating freedom. An iconic model of Italian design, this table embodies the synthesis of technical sophistication and formal elegance characteristic of Borsani's work.
