Description

This refined Belgian Art Deco mirror, circa 1925, embodies the sleek modernity and understated glamour that characterized the movement's early years. Its oval shape is framed in nickel-plated metal, a material prized at the time for its cool sheen and contemporary character. The thin, continuous outline of the frame allows the mirror to be hung horizontally or vertically, giving it a versatile presence that adapts effortlessly to different interiors. The nickel-plated surface has weathered beautifully over time, developing a soft patina that enhances the mirror's vintage charm without altering its clean geometric elegance. Its simplicity is deliberate; it expresses Art Deco's fascination with clean lines, industrial materials and a subtle sense of luxury based on proportions rather than ornamentation. Whether
