Description

Important pharmacy cabinet bookcase in larch wood, dating from the late 19th century, characterized by an imposing structure and great functionality. Comprising an upper section with glazed doors enriched with elegant decorations and internal shelves, and a lower section with numerous archive drawers. The larch wood, warm and textured, displays a beautiful natural patina that adds great charm to the piece. In very good overall condition, solid and fully usable, with signs of age consistent with its period; the piece requires conservative restoration. A piece of strong visual presence, ideal for studies, libraries, showrooms, or representative interiors.
