Description

An elegant Neapolitan Louis XV chest of drawers, dating back to the mid-18th century, crafted from refined violet wood and enriched with an elaborate inlay of geometric motifs and rosettes. The perfectly executed rosettes adorn both the sides and the two large front drawers, highlighting the mastery of the Neapolitan cabinetmakers of the period. The structure features the typical flowing, slender lines of the Louis XV style, with curved profiles and slightly arched legs, embellished with small gilded bronzes at the feet and handles. The surfaces, crafted from various precious woods, create a refined interplay of color contrasts. The piece is completed by a magnificent, shaped, and original Siena Yellow marble top, which emphasizes the value and sophistication of the piece. A work of
