Description

Scandinavian rocking chair designed by Frank Reenskaug and published by Bramin in the 1960s. This model perfectly illustrates the Danish design aesthetic of the time, combining formal elegance, comfort and manufacturing quality. The black-stained wood frame features fluid, sculptural lines characteristic of Reenskaug's work. The cradle-shaped base ensures a smooth, harmonious rocking motion. The seat and backrest are designed to be comfortable and comfortable. The seat and backrest are upholstered in striped fabric in shades of red and pink, providing a graphic note that contrasts with the sobriety of the wood. Slim armrests and a sloping backrest enhance comfort while maintaining a light, airy silhouette. An iconic piece of Scandinavian design, sought after for its
