Description

Elegant Flemish-inspired landscape depicting a lively riverside scene in a deep, structured wooded setting.The composition is organized around a sloping path leading to a river bordered by distant architecture and hills. In the foreground, a couple of figures in colorful costumes enliven the scene, while other figures scatter across the landscape, bringing life and narrative to the whole.The right-hand side is dominated by a group of powerful trees, with finely detailed foliage and richly textured materials. On the left, the view opens onto a vast, luminous panorama, structured by a river and picturesque buildings.AttributionThis work was produced in the circle of Gillis II van Coninxloo, a major painter of the late 16th-century Flemish school, known for his structured forest landscapes
