Description

This refined three-tier porcelain piece by Ribes Limoges, named "un serviteur muet", is best appreciated as a decorative centerpiece, combining elegance, color, and classic French artistry. Produced in Limoges, the historic heart of fine porcelain making, it dates from the 20th century and reflects the enduring sophistication of French tableware. Each tier features a rich ruby red ground, beautifully contrasted with delicate gilt ornamentation and a textured gold border that catches the light with remarkable depth. At the center of each plate, finely painted floral bouquets, composed of roses and multicolored blossoms, bring softness and charm, executed in a traditional and timeless style. The structure is completed by an ornate gilt brass handle and stem, both decorative and functional, allowing the
