Description

Beautiful bust representing the Emperor Caracalla, treated in the taste of Antiquity, with his willful and severe expression, characterized by the wrinkled forehead, the steady gaze, the short, tightly curled hair, as well as a finely chiseled beard. The whole rests on a circular pedestal and presents a beautiful sobriety of line, reinforced by the ample drapery that covers the shoulders and gives the sculpture a monumental presence. The ensemble rests on a circular pedestal and presents a beautiful sobriety of line, reinforced by the ample drape that covers the shoulders and gives the sculpture a monumental presence. The energetic physiognomy of the figure, typical of Roman imperial portraits, is particularly well rendered here. This decorative work, inspired by ancient models, will appeal as
