Description

This sculptural group in brown patina bronze depicts a young woman and a child returning from the fields.The woman is carrying a bundle of branches, while the little girl at her side is holding a basket filled with flowers.The work is signed J. D'Aste on the terrace, a sculptor renowned for his highly sensitive popular sujerts.The chasing work precisely emphasizes the draping of the clothes and the movement of the figures. The print rests on an oval-shaped griotte red marble, encircled by a "gilded" bronze molding in twisted cord.The whole is in a very good state of preservation with an even patina and intact marble.The total height of this bronze is 42 cmJoseph D'Aste (1881-1945) an Italian-born sculptor based in Paris, exhibited regularly at the Salon des artistes français from
