

Empire Eagle Clock

Description

An elegant Empire-era mantel clock, made in France in the early 19th century. This piece stands out for its harmonious combination of fine materials: a refined green Alpine marble base, decorative elements in mercury-gilded bronze, and burnished bronze details. The frame is embellished with a majestic, finely chiseled eagle, a symbol of power and authority typical of Napoleonic taste, supporting the enameled dial with Roman numerals. The quality of the mercury-gilding lends a warm, deep radiance, enhancing the richness of the ornamental details. The movement is a wire-wound, a traditional mechanism of the time, a testament to the high level of French craftsmanship. The overall effect expresses balance, solemnity, and prestige, making this clock not only a
