Description

Elegant Belle Époque tiara comb, made circa 1900, in remarkable finely openwork silverwork.The setting features a refined decoration of rinceaux, foliage and floral motifs, characteristic of the Art Nouveau style, delicately underlined by a meticulous grain setting. The whole is adorned with antique rhinestones, imitating diamonds, which add sparkle and lightness to the composition.The structure rests on a wide ebony comb, a noble material prized in the late 19th century for quality hair accessories. This type of jewelry was intended for elegant hairstyles, worn at ceremonies, parties or society events.The set offers a beautiful presence, with a harmonious balance between the finesse of the decoration and the solidity of the setting.Era:About 1890 - 1910, Belle
