Description

Brass Empire-style wall light - 1950s
Elegant Empire-style brass wall sconce, 1950s work. It features a cylindrical central shaft decorated with horizontal moldings, extended by two symmetrical side arms supporting two lights. The lower part terminates in a cup-shaped decorative element with terminal socket, reminiscent of the decorative vocabulary of the Empire style. The mantel is made up of a cylindrical central shaft decorated with horizontal moldings, extended by two symmetrical lateral arms supporting two lights. The ensemble is topped by a black lacquered sheet metal lampshade with a clear interior for a soft, warm diffusion of light. This decorative model, inspired by early 19th-century lighting fixtures, fits perfectly into a classic interior, office or hallway. Dimensions: Height: 47
