Description

This late 19th-century oil on canvas by the Scandinavian master Ad. Andersson reveals the stark and compelling beauty of a northern archipelago. The en plein air technique, defined by rapid brushwork, brilliantly conveys the naturalism of the composition and the natural lighting. The artist was evidently captivated by a quiet inlet of the sea bay, where fishing boats have found their refuge upon the shallows during low tide. Andersson has subtly captured a moment in time and the melancholy charm of the Scandinavian coast - one can almost feel the fresh breath of the sea breeze and hear the quiet rustle of the waves. The thick brushstrokes perfectly emphasise the texture and volume of the rocky shore, the boats and the overcast sky. This work will become an exquisite accent for an interior,
