Description

A still life characterized by a balanced composition and strong expressive sensitivity. The work depicts everyday objects interpreted in a free and modern style, where shapes and colors blend in an intimate and cozy atmosphere. The painting is distinguished by the fluidity of the color application and the soft, deep tones, which create evocative plays of light and transparency. The compositional structure and the synthetic rendering of forms recall the artistic research typical of European painting in the second half of the 20th century.
