Description

Large & interesting canvas which dates a priori from the 1920s-1930s and depicts a deserted street in the famous Montmartre district of Paris..The work is signed lower right but the signature is uncertain / see detail shot:either it is "Ch. Rénard" or Ch. Bénard ? remark:one of the attractions of this of the appeal of this painting is that it carries with it a profoundpoetic sentiment that harkens back to the artists of the Montmartre bohemia:indeed, the dilapidated barracks and solitude of the surroundings createan atmosphere of melancholy that plunges us completelyworld of the cursed painters: whether it's "Rénard" or "Bénard or "Bénard", he too seems to have fallen into oblivion...nevertheless, his quality is undeniable.quality is undeniable, like halfway between Maurice Utrillo & Takanori Oguiss... -
