Description

Wrought iron chandelier - 1940sCharacterful wrought-iron beaten chandelier, dating from the 1940s, composed of 10 arms of light harmoniously deployed around a central rosette motif. The ensemble features high-quality workmanship, with a rhythmic decoration of scrolls, stylized leaves and elegant banding, inspired by a Baroque and Romantic style.This model captivates with its balance and presence. On its own, it is a strong piece, capable of structuring a space and serving as a starting point for characterful decoration. It's equally at home in an interior (living room, hallway, dining room), a covered exterior (terrace, patio), or in an interior design or hospitality project.It can also be embellished with small lampshades, in solid or variegated tones, to create an even more
