Description

Armchair from the Château de Neuilly, based on a model by Jacob-Desmalter, circa 1804-1815, similar to the gilded wood model of a series of 6 furnishing Empress Josephine's bedroom at Malmaison, but actually delivered in 1810 for the bedroom in Empress Marie-Louise's petits appartements at the Tuileries Palace. In molded and carved varnished mahogany, turned and ringed front legs. Sabre-shaped back legs. Plain square belt, basket-handle front. Baluster-turned armrests topped by a fleuron, round armrests without cuff connecting to the back by a scroll topped by a palmette. This chair was probably part of the furnishings of the Château de Neuilly for Prince Joachim Murat (1767-1815), who acquired it on March 4, 1804. On his departure for Naples in 1808, the prince ceded the fully
