Description

Pair of charming wrought iron chandeliers - 1940sPair of characterful wrought-iron chandeliers from the 1940s, featuring stylized leaves and elegant scrolls in a refined, decorative spirit. Each chandelier is composed of 6 lights, offering a harmonious visual balance and a beautiful presence in the space.The set testifies to high-quality work, inspired by a baroque and romantic style, ideal for structuring a space and creating a strong atmosphere. This pair makes a remarkable decorative base, whether for a characterful interior (living room, entrance hall, dining room), a covered exterior (terrace, patio), or an interior architecture or hospitality project.They can also be embellished with small lampshades, in plain or variegated tones, to create an even more personalized ambience. reinforces their uniqueness and brings a very marked charm, equally well suited to an interior as to a commercial or outdoor space.We point out that the chandeliers are fully electrified, ready to install, while recommending a check of the electrical installation.Aesthetically, one features a green patina, while the second is metal-colored, with a few traces of rust deliberately retained to give them an authentic, decorative cachet.According to their history, these chandeliers are said to have come from a property on Boulevard Patch in Saint-Tropez.Features (per chandelier):Era: 1940sMaterial: beaten wrought iron6 lightsWidth: 90 cmDepth: 60 cmHeight: 78 cmCondition: good overall condition, with a consistent patina deliberately preserved for its decorative aspect.Sold as is.Price: EUR1,580 (non-negotiable) per pairDelivery offered throughout France by Galerie De Cicco - careful packaging
