Description

Very beautiful glass plate stereoscopic viewformat 8.5 x 17 cmWilliam Tell chapel in Fluelen, SwitzerlandWilliam Tell chapel is an emblematic place in Switzerland, located between Sisikon and Flüelen, on the shore of Lake Lucerne, in the canton of Uri. According to legend, it was at this spot, known as the Tellsplatte, that William Tell jumped from the bailiff Gessler's boat to escape him.The chapel has become a symbol of Switzerland's founding myth and a place of pilgrimage for those interested in Swiss history and legend.The Ferrier et Soulier company was founded by Claude-Marie FERRIER (1811-1889)and Charles SOULIER (1816-1886) in 1859. It specialized in the production of stereoscopic views.Soulier's plates depicted a variety of subjects, including
