Description

Elegant 18th-century Louis XVI armchair in carved wood, a refined example of French Neoclassical taste. The frame features a slightly arched shaped back, gracefully curved armrests, and fluted tapered legs typical of the style. The structure is sound and well preserved, enriched with carved details and delicate nailhead trim outlining the backrest and seat.

Both seat and back are upholstered; the fabric and padding require replacement, offering an excellent opportunity for bespoke restoration in keeping with the original character or adapted to a contemporary interior. Ideal for classical settings, formal studies, or interiors with historic charm.

Condition: structurally sound and in good overall condition; upholstery and padding to be redone.
