Description

Before us is a European pastoral rural landscape, created by an unidentified master in the second half of the 18th century. In the foreground of the coulisse composition, among sprawling trees by a cool backwater, cows rest peacefully at a watering hole. In the background, a panoramic view opens onto a sunlit, boundless valley, where the outlines of peasant houses and the silhouette of a tower can be made out amidst the greenery. The painter conveyed the silence and peacefulness of this corner of nature with great affection. This expressive work is a masterful example of European pastoral painting, capturing the idyllic harmony of the rural landscape, and will become an exquisite decoration for an interior, filling the home with an atmosphere of romantic contemplation.DETAILS:Artist:
