Description

Charming old oil on panel depicting a peaceful river scene, a French work from the late 19th century. The composition guides the eye along a gentle riverbank, where flowering vegetation leads to an elegant stone bridge in the background. The palette is subtle and harmonious, blending warm earth tones with muted greens under a calm sky, evoking an early-morning or late-day light. The painter adopts a free brushstroke, slightly influenced by Impressionism, bringing life and movement to the trees and water while retaining an impression of tranquility. The perspective is balanced, with the curve of the riverbank and the bridge creating depth and visual interest. Presented in a gilded wood frame richly decorated with acanthus motifs, in keeping with the period character of the
