Description

A rare chandelier produced by Martinelli Luce, an icon of mid-20th-century Italian design, characterized by a bold and highly sculptural aesthetic. The piece fully embodies the company's innovative and experimental design language, successfully blending functionality and formal exploration into a visually striking balance.The light fixture consists of a large white opal glass diffuser with soft, minimalist lines, designed to ensure uniform, enveloping light. Completing the structure are orange lacquered metal elements that introduce a vibrant chromatic contrast, typical of the modernist style of the era, lending character and distinctiveness to the piece.The result is an object with a strong visual presence, capable of enhancing both contemporary settings and vintage-style environments, becoming a true
