Description

Period albumen print, dry stamp
Façade of the Church of San Zaccaria, Venice
This detailed façade, featuring elaborate carvings, arched windows and statues, is an architectural masterpiece marking the transition between the Gothic and Renaissance styles.
Carlo Naya (1816-1882) was one of the pioneers of photography in Italy. After studying law in Pisa, he settled in Piazza San Marco in Venice, where he opened one of the largest establishments dedicated to photography of his time.
