Description

Beautiful still life in oil on panel by Nelly Trumel (1938-2018), in a resolutely classical spirit inherited from the great European pictorial traditions. The finely orchestrated composition features a bowl garnished with delicately treated grapes, accompanied by a partially cut pear and apples. The artist pays particular attention to the rendering of the materials: transparency of the grapes, delicate flesh of the sliced fruit, subtlety of the reflections and softness of the modeling. The dark, deep, nuanced background sets the work in an aesthetic inspired by 17th-century Flemish still lifes, lending the whole an intimate, timeless atmosphere. Light, mastered with finesse, structures the volumes and animates the composition with elegance. Realized on panel, a demanding technique favoring precision and
