Description

Sylvain Yeatman-Eiffel was born in Paris in 1943. A painter for as long as he can remember, creates fabrics for couturier Christian Dior, designs contemporary contemporary furniture and has been exhibiting regularly since 1969. His father is originally from the southern United States. He is the direct descendant descendant of the great builder Gustave Eiffel. In the sixties, he began to practice an abstraction whose inspiration is his favorite subjects: shadows on walls, reflections in water, the crashing of waves combining dream and reality to incite rest and meditation the multiple variations of the world's water lilies. Numerous exhibitions in France and abroad. "Carpes impériales" Oil and sand on canvas 82.5x102.5 cm
