Description

Beautiful oil on cardboard by André Verger depicting a coastline in Charente Maritime circa 1960, signed lower left. Size of the painting alone out of frame 38x46cm. So this is a new post-impressionist composition with a fauve tendency by André Verger, as 9 times out of 10 he paints the Charente coastline, here animated by sailboats, with buildings in the distance that can help identify the location. I haven't managed to do it yet, but most probably the coast between Royan and La Rochelle. As usual in this period, he uses a highly stylized touch and a soft, pastel palette. We're obviously reminded of two of his masters, Gaston Balande and Albert Marquet. André Verger is a painter affiliated with the Charentaise school, having studied at the Beaux Arts in Paris, he returned to his beloved Charente Maritime
