Description

This beautiful Norman wedding armoire is a true gem of 19th-century craftsmanship. Made from solid medium oak, it embodies the sturdiness and timeless charm of antique furniture. The cabinet features rich carving, a testament to the craftsmanship of the period. Its straight cornice emphasizes a clean line, while a large bouquet of flowers adorns the central top, delicately sheltering doves, symbols of love and peace. The straight doors at the top are embellished with carved flowers, adding a touch of refinement to the whole. The cabinet's protruding panels, a sign of generous thickness, are framed by a molded surround that reinforces its majestic allure. In the center, a crossbeam features an oval cartouche décor, featuring a finely-worked basket of flowers. The tie, meanwhile, is adorned with diamond motifs and flower stems, a detail that doesn't go unnoticed. Brass fittings add a touch of elegance and durability, while the ever-functional lock comes with its original key. Shell-shaped front legs add a note of sophistication, and the heavily carved bottom rail features a central bouquet that harmoniously balances the whole. Inside, the cabinet offers practical space with three shelves provided, two of which are currently installed. The two shelves present are equipped with drawers, perfect for storing precious objects or souvenirs. Two cleats are missing to install the third shelf, but this in no way detracts from the beauty and functionality of this exceptional piece of furniture. With its imposing dimensions (height: 227 cm, width: 139 cm), this wardrobe is sure to make a statement in any bedroom, living room or even entrance hall. Its Norman style and carved details make it a unique piece of furniture, ideal for lovers of antiques and pieces steeped in history. Why choose this cabinet? Authenticity: a 19th-century piece of furniture, witness to a bygone era. Quality: Solid oak and careful carving for exceptional durability. Functionality: generous storage space with shelves and drawers. Aesthetics: Elegant, timeless design, perfect for enhancing your interior. You can follow me on my Instagram by following this link:
