Description

Superb Art Nouveau-style solid oak two-body sideboard from the early 20th century. This elegant piece of furniture is distinguished by its sober, harmonious lines, as well as its carved floral motifs typical of the period. The upper section features two side doors framing a central niche with shelf and baluster gallery, ideal for displaying crockery or decorative objects. The lower section offers attractive storage space with two drawers on the belt and three doors, one of which is a central double door. Original brass handles and escutcheons add an extra touch of authenticity. The ensemble rests on slightly curved legs, giving the piece of furniture a beautiful visual lightness. Furniture in very good overall condition, showing a warm patina and particularly decorative wood
