Description

An 18th-century antique painting on copper depicting the Madonna del Dito, a devotional subject of great popularity and particular expressive intensity. This Italian work features a compact and harmonious composition, in which the figure of the Virgin is rendered with delicate lines and remarkable attention to detail. The copper-plate technique, typical of high-quality antique painting, yields a smooth, compact surface that enhances the luminosity of the colors and the precision of the drawing, lending the image a refined brilliance. From an iconographic perspective, the Madonna is depicted in an intimate and contemplative pose, a feature that makes this type of subject particularly prized in both collecting and decorative contexts. The painting is set in an elegant carved and gilded
