Description

An elegant Biedermeier sideboard from the first half of the 19th century, crafted from fine cherry wood. The piece features curved doors with a warm, uniform grain--typical of the finest cabinetmaking of the era--which lends movement and refinement to the front profile. The structure is enhanced by side columns with capitals and molded bases, decorative elements that are understated yet exhibit great formal balance. The original slate top adds a refined contrast in texture and color, while also ensuring sturdiness and functionality. The piece is also available as a pair of sideboards, ideal for a symmetrical arrangement in large spaces, formal entryways, or prestigious rooms. A piece of great elegance and proportion, perfect both as a sideboard for the living room or entryway, and as a statement piece
