Description

A Russian icon depicting the Mother of God known as "Joy of All Who Sorrow," one of the most beloved and widespread subjects in the Orthodox tradition. The Virgin is depicted in the center, facing forward, as she spreads her mantle as a sign of protection. Surrounding her are figures of suffering faithful--the sick, the poor, and the needy--assisted by angels, in a rich, narrative composition of great devotional impact. At the top, Christ is depicted giving his blessing within a celestial mandorla.
