A work of intense expressive synthesis, La firma is fully in line with the mature poetics of Mario Tozzi, one of the leading figures of Italian Magic Realism. The composition unfolds across a textured, layered surface dominated by a limited color palette, in which white and reddish-brown interact to create a strong visual contrast. At the center of the work, the word "MARIO TOZZI" emerges--an element that transcends the function of a simple signature to become the very subject of the painting. Surrounding it, essential marks and barely sketched figures--a human silhouette, graphic symbols, almost archaic elements--evoke a dimension suspended between memory and abstraction. The deliberately primitive line and the rarefied spatial construction reflect Tozzi's exploration of the essentiality of form and the evocative power of the mark. The work stands out for its conceptual power, where artistic identity and pictorial language merge into a single visual statement. In excellent condition, complete with frame, it represents an interesting testament to the artist's most intimate and reflective body of work.
